

NEWSLETTER future.repair.machine

In this newsletter we would like to share with you some of the key findings of our Creative Europe project future.repair.machine. The international cooperation future.repair.machine explores the concept of repair as a sustainable and innovative tool in the cultural and social environments of five European cities: Graz, Eindhoven, Budapest, Berlin and Munich. Artists, scientists and citizens are concerned about the climate and changing use of our resources. Future.repair.machine brings together artists, scientists and citizens to work together with the aim to make the present sustainable for future generations.

The Artistic Interventions

All the partners worked with artists, experts and citizens in workshops on different aspects of repair: language, clothing, food, human relationships, relationship with nature.

From this research work each partner developed an artistic intervention. On our website you can see videos of the artistic interventions as well as descriptions.

Here is the list of the interventions

The Manifesto and the future.repair.academy

At the conference we also founded the of future.repair.academy. The academy is based on a manifesto (<https://tinyurl.com/ync58aah>) with contributions from all partners.

The future repair academy

- will to enable anyone passionate about challenging our current approaches to repair, to re-think, re-create and to re-act within an committed network of change-makers
- will provide a safe and sustainable environment for substantive and artistic discourse, practice, learning and exchange. Anyone who chooses to join the academy will have full access to materials and data that critically reflect on current global crises, and to propose new strategies for addressing the challenges of our time.

At the moment, we are at the starting point of the academy but we will develop it in the coming years to create an ongoing exchange apparatus, the academy hopes to kindle new collaborations, practices and initiatives. Anyone who is interested and shares our values can join the academy by sending an email to academy@uni-t.org.

It is also possible to create your own manifesto based on our proposals. You can do this in the pdf of the manifesto that is available on our platform. For Android users we have an app that you can install to help you to create your own manifesto. However, you will have to be patient as the installation takes some time (a few minutes). During this time the screen will be black and it will look as if it is not working. This also depends on your internet connection.
