

On Friday I would start by asking the audience to think on who they are today and connecting to the body, as a way to establish the contract with them, that something is expected of them possibly.