

audience is the audience and wants that identity of being audience: it wants the artist to be honest. The audience wants to see the prove that honesty can exist, but is not able himself to be in that act, of course, cause it is not choosing to be an independant mind, choosing to think freely and different...

we are fucked, but we can only graciously declare this if we engage in our practice and listen to who we are, what we believe, what we truly ~~are~~ feel and that other people can help us in that lonely process. And... the end at the day it doesn't matter at all, so enjoy every single moment and make sure you learn and develop, so when the moment comes you are prepared for everything that life is about.

Yours sincerely,
