

to offer and I think this is even more beautiful than what you have already done. Let's see where we, you, can go, embracing all the fear and doubts or uncertainties that come with it!

You're on a beautiful train right now, not knowing what is the end destination with a million possible side tracks and doors to open, allow yourself to live this experience fully. It is a very special and precious one.

This train is for you and not all of the people who are merely curious or want to benefit from it. Keep it for yourself and don't feel obliged to share or answer questions there where you feel uncomfortable or with people you don't feel comfortable. Live it, see where it goes and as long as you know for yourself why you do what you do, there is no need to defend yourself to anyone.

Love,
Joany

HAMLET