

found in seven flowers of Ophelia, now that I find extremely remarkable. How beautiful it is that we managed to bring back this immense concept and question into these seven flowers and what an extreme genius Shakespeare is of course. I fell in love with his poetry during all this period and I can't wait to read more of it. It's incredible how there can be so much in relatively such a small book, the messages hidden behind everything he says keep flying around in my head and made a huge impression on me. I'm grateful to have found and discovered this beauty because before it was unknown territory for me.

I would very much like to continue working on this topic and content, I feel like now the door has opened there is an endless research behind and an incredible amount of things to find. It's a great inspiration to work on and even much more rich than I expected in the beginning. Thank you for pushing me in all this process, you triggered many things inside me which was sometimes a bit of a struggle but more importantly extremely precious and a desire I have had for a long time, now it is only the beginning of course but you manage to move me every time and having this experience a chance of working with you is something I would wish for anybody to have.

I'm looking forward to dive back in this trip tomorrow again, let's see what the day will bring, it has been a rollercoaster every day! How beautiful it is to have the chance to be in a rollercoaster every day, not to know what to expect and always be surprised by something good or bad. And then in the end the bad or difficult, whatever you want to call it, turns into something extremely precious, fruitful and
