

trying to talk it good but I honestly do think, after reflecting on it, it was one of the most important confrontations and realisations I have had in these past weeks because trying to cover up my feelings is one of my biggest pitfalls and to see the direct effect on the work is important for me.

I feel happy that now I can digest everything a bit, give it a place and then create the space to make this little seed grow. It needs work and a lot of watering but first some sun to live. Thankyou for everything, I feel ready and happy to refuel again and fill up this emptiness that is finally created by this letting go of things in the past weeks. Both for the work and me as a person this was extremely important and ~~it's~~ it's important for me that you know that you gave me back the will to dance those last weeks because I honestly lost it before. I'm extremely happy and grateful to see the beauty in it again, because also before when I was not experiencing this I couldn't let it go at all and it started to be draining which made me sad.

For now this is the last choreographic love letter, I will miss this way of correspondence ; yesterday I realised how much more and differently I feel the freedom to talk and share in a written letter then even by talking or using stupid social media and cell phones. Once again I want to thank you for the beautiful human being you are and having the chance to have met you in my life. I hope you can go and take some distance of everything, enjoy being back in Holland and seeing Maïté again, going to Take Five and have your 'normal' life again. I think you need it and I'm happy you will get a chance to do all of that very soon. Start to prepare your moving to Switzerland will also be one step forward again and it makes me happy to know that soon you can start to do that. I wish you a lot of joy, happiness, meeting beautiful people