Research Activities

- 2025 BECOMINGS, Visiting Artist Fellowship at the Department of Fiber Art at Cranbrook Academy of Art in Detroit, USA. Project leader. Funded by the Danish Art Foundation.
Inspired by Donna Haraway's Making Kin (2016) and building on the concept of material-listening(s) developed in my PhD (2024), BECOMINGS is a textile-relational research project that explores how participatory practices can spark playful approaches to (co)crafting and collective composition. Situated at the intersection of textile art, performative practice, and socially engaged art, the project investigates how co-creative and relational compositions emerge through shared making, movement, and material engagement.
- 2025 – 2026 The Dramaturgy of Things in Performance, Stockholm University of the Arts, SE.
Research group: costume designer Christina Lindgren (project leader), dr Charlotte Østergaard, dramaturge dr Sodja Lotker, instructor/organist dr Liv Kristin Holmberg, somatic practitioner Sally E. Dean. The project is funded by Stockholm University of the Arts.
- May 2025 Sonic Fashion, Swedish School of Textiles, University of Borås, SE.
Project leader: fashion designer and artistic researcher dr Vidmina Stasiulytė
Participating in 3day workshop that physically exploring Sonic Textiles developed by Vidmina Stasiulytė. Participants: composer dr Kristin Norderva, somatic practitioner Sally E Dean, dr Charlotte Østergaard.
- 2023– ongoing Co-knitting
Independent artistic research project co-developed and co-lead with lecture and textile designer dr Marie Ledendal. The project explores the materiality of the artistic practice of co-knitting and its implications. Taking point of departure in co-knitting physical artefacts, the project considers the interplay between making and thinking, encompassing both the human and the non-human, resulting in co-constructed knowledge, and meaning through textile practices.
- 2021–2023 Costume Agency – artistic research project, Oslo National Academy of the Arts; NO.

By participating in two workshops #5 and #8 I (apart from informing my own research) contributed to the Costume Agency research project (2018–2023). As co-researcher I was invited by the project's main researchers Christina Lindgren and Sodja Lotker to contribute to present and unfold the project's research outcomes at 15th Prague Quadrennial for Performance Space and Design, CZ.

- 2018–2019 Dialogen med materialet – om fysikalitet i designprocessen (In Dialogue with Material – On Physicality in the Design Processes), The Danish National School of Performing Arts (DNSPA), DK.
Project leader and author of funding application. Funded by the Danish Cultural Ministry's KUV-fundings. The project aimed to further develop the method The Dialogue with the Material that integrate physicality and embodied experiences in the design process. The goal was to create aesthetic methodologies that balance visual expressions and embodied and sensory experience, enabling critical dialogues and reflections on between inside and outside perspectives, between body and material, that include dialogues on volume, materiality, and structure.
- 2016–2017 Tekstiltekniker som formgivningspotentiale (Textile Techniques as a Design Potential) DNSPA, DK.
Project leader and author of funding application. The project was funded by DNSPA. The project focus was to develop the method Dialogue with the Material – a method that suggest that sketching is not solely cognitive processes but include sensory engagements with materials and the work of the making-thinking hand. As such the project explored form-sketching potentials of textile techniques—specifically, various forms of braiding.

Material-driven participatory and performative events

A central dimension of Charlotte Østergaard's artistic practice lies in material-driven performance/participatory events, in which material-discursive encounters are foregrounded. In recent works, audiences, and participants – ranging from children to adults – are invited to engage directly with materials. These engagements are not solely aesthetic but are relationally specific and experimentally oriented, foregrounding the agency of participants and materials in shaping playful experiences. Most of these works have been presented at internationally curated performance festivals, with selected pieces also exhibited in Danish Art Institutions.
