About Ken Friedman

Ken Friedman is Chair Professor of Design Innovation Studies at the Tongji University College of Design and Innovation in Shanghai, China. He is also University Distinguished Professor at Swinburne University of Technology in Melbourne, Australia. Friedman is an Adjunct Professor at the James Cook University School of Creative Arts in Townsville, Australia and a Visiting Professor at the UTS Business School, University of Technology Sydney in Sydney, Australia.

Friedman was appointed as Dean of the Faculty of Design at Swinburne in 2008, serving for five years. He was named University Distinguished Professor in 2010 and Distinguished Professor of Design in 2012. He is a Fellow of The Policy Lab of Boston, Massachusetts, and Chief Investigator of Capacity Mapping for Integrative Design, a Flagship Collaborative Fund project for the Future Manufacturing Flagship of CSIRO, the Australian Commonwealth Science and Industrial Research Organization.

Friedman is Editor-in-Chief of She Ji. The Journal of Design, Economics, and Innovation, a new journal to be published by Elsevier in collaboration with Tongji University from 2015.

Friedman has worked with national design policy in Australia, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, and Wales, and state design policy for Victoria. He was Advisor to the Federal Interdepartmental Committee for the Design Policy Scoping Process for the Office of the Arts in the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet, and he served as Co-Chair of the International Advisory Group of the pilot project for DesignGov, the Australian Centre for Excellence in Public Sector Design.

Ken Friedman works at the intersection of three fields: design, management, and art. He works with theory construction and research methodology for design, focusing on strategic design for value creation and economic innovation. Friedman has done research in philosophy of design, doctoral education in design, knowledge management, and philosophy of science. Friedman has developed international research networks and conferences in design research. He is an editorial board member of Design Studies, International Journal of Design, Design and Culture, the Journal of Design Research and Artifact, and an editorial advisor for Visible Language, and the International Journal of Design Creativity and Innovation. Friedman is a Council Member of the Design Research Society and a member of the executive board of The Interaction Design Foundation. He co-chaired the La Clusaz Conference on Doctoral Education in Design in 2000, the European Academy of Management Conference in 2006, the Design Research Society Conference in 2006, the Cumulus International Conference in 2009, and the Hong Kong Conference on Doctoral Education in Design in 2011, as well as chairing international conferences on Design Thinking in 2009 and Strategic Design: Value Creation for Business and Industry in 2012.

In 2007, Loughborough University honored Friedman with the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa, for outstanding contributions to design research. The award citation appears at:

http://www.lboro.ac.uk/service/publicity/degree_days/2007/Summer/Friedman.html

In 1990, Friedman created the first course in strategic design in Europe for the Oslo Business School, and one of the first in the world. From 1994 to 2009, he was Professor of Leadership and Strategic Design at the Norwegian School of Management, where he worked on the knowledge economy, culture, and leadership. From 2003 to 2009, he held a research appointment at Denmark's Design School and the Danish Design Research Center in Copenhagen.

Ken Friedman is also a practicing artist and designer active in the international laboratory of art, design, music, and architecture known as Fluxus. He had his first solo exhibition in New York in 1966. His work is represented in major museums and galleries around the world, including the Museum of Modern Art and the Guggenheim Museum in New York, the Tate Gallery in London, the Hood Museum of Art at Dartmouth College, and Stadtsgalerie Stuttgart. The University of Iowa Alternative Traditions in the Contemporary Arts is the official repository of Friedman's papers and research notes. The Silverman Fluxus Collection at the Museum of Modern Art, Archiv Sohm at Stadtsgalerie Stuttgart and the Mandeville Department of Special Collections at the University of California also hold extensive archives on Friedman's work of the 1960s and 1970s.

In March 2013, the James Cook University School of Creative Arts presented an exhibition of Friedman's event scores titled Events. This exhibition will go on international tour in 2016 accompanied by a major book.
