the audience:

draft 29

community without community

[prologue]

Dear member,

welcome to draft the audience with me. It is a pleasure to have you here.

I have a proposition for you. It is an invitation to create something together. The audience is a great interest and love of mine. Having arrived here, I assume it interests you as well. So, I would like to ask you to be my co-researcher for the following 30 minutes. Ok?

If you consent, here is how it works:

[act]

The French philosopher Jean-Luc Nancy suggests, that we have not lost the sense of community. Instead he says that there never was a "we" that had something in common. On the contrary, for Nancy, only thing in common that we have is that we do not have something in common. Lack of community is what draws us together, to become "us".

Now, for the duration of 30 minutes, and in your own personal way, I would ask you to study these questions inspired by Nancy:

Is there a "we" here? If so, how does it appear? Who are we?

The act starts at the moment when you step into to theatre space. You are free to move and act in the space in the way you choose.

The act consists of the audience composing itself.

Yours,
Tuomas

[epilogue]

P.S. After the act, there is a panel and a discussion.

the audience:

is a series of experiments and expositions
premiering in various venues and contexts
more or less connected to the medium of performance

poses the audience as a question
considers the creation, or exposure, of a collectivity
a receptive, attentive plurality
of dissenting and consenting beings
