

process of standing still to really stand still, not only for and about the research but also for yourself. Last week gave me the feeling that this is your time to digest allowing you also to leave certain things behind and move on. In which way and how you will move on will become clear along the way, trust, patience and enjoy what comes and will come on your path.

Now after having had some distance from talking about madness (even though I spent my 2 days watching documentaries about Ted Bundy, a serial killer with a bizarre trial & process which you should maybe watch) I'm ready and excited to step fully in again. Let's create this RC and enjoy the Bovenzaal in the theatre!!!

Love,
Joany.